INFORMATION ON THE CUSTOMARY GIFT:

- It is generally accepted, from a civil and tax point of view, that a gift of use does not fall within the scope of the donor's estate.
- A customary gift is established without the presence of a civil-law notary.
- If the donor is a protected adult benefiting from a power of representation (guardianship or family habilitation), this document must be signed by the legally designated representative, and accompanied by a specific authorization from the Court for this operation.
- If the donor is a protected adult benefiting from a power of assistance (curatorship or safeguard of justice), this document must be signed by the account holder and by his legally designated representative, accompanied by a copy of the Court order concerned by the valid protection measure.
